

"Though He slay me, yet will I Hope in Him."

Rest from Labors

Alexis Trammell had an interest in drawing when she was very young and was encouraged by her grandmother who was also an artist. She is a member of the Paducah Area Painters' Alliance and through the Paducah School of Art she received encouragement and found a new confidence and passion to pursue her art. Her fascination with detail and realism was developed with her experience with different dry mediums. Having used graphite and colored pencils for years, she found a new love for charcoal and an interest in pastels.

Mrs. Trammell has won several awards at local art shows, including the Woman's Club of Paducah Annual Art Show and the Paducah School of Art Student Show, and was accepted into the Colored Pencil Society of America International Exhibit in 2005.

She says, she used to draw things simply because she saw beauty in the subject, but lately has focused upon trying to tell a story. Her ultimate end is that her art might bring glory to God, the original Artist.
